

This Is Not Only A Duty But Privilege As American Citizen

DIST. 210 HIGH SCHOOL PLANS PROGRESSING

Most of the tentative plans for the new high school building have been completed, and were recently accepted by the board of education. Superintendent A. Hunter Chapman has also secured the approval of these plans from the State Department of Public Instruction, and the State Board of Vocational Education. Such approval is necessary in order to later secure the federal and state reimbursement for the vocational programs.

The architectural firm of Childs & Smith is now proceeding with the working drawings, specifications, and the individual room lay-outs. This period of detailed planning will require approximately two months, after which they will be submitted to the various contractors interested in bidding on the project. It is expected that these contracts can be awarded in January to insure an early start on the building. The architects believe that many contractors will be interested in this $1,200,000 building project, and that several favorable bids will be received.

At the last meeting of the Board of Education on September 17, the exact location of the building on the site, was decided. It will be remembered that the voters selected the 70 acre Shepley farm, located two miles east of New Lenox on the north side of route No. 30. All board members were of the opinion that the building should be placed sufficiently back from the highway to eliminate much of the disturbance resulting from the heavy traffic. It was decided to place the building back about 400 feet from the road, and about 150 feet west of the unimproved road, which has been closed to all traffic. It was also decided to place the building parallel with the Lincoln highway, rather than due east and west. This would not only facilitate traffic, but presents a more pleasing appearance as people passed by on the road.

Several minor changes were made from the original tentative plans, in order to make the building more functional and to eliminate all areas not needed for the educational program. Considerable space was saved in bringing the gymnasium forward and closer to the main part of the building. It was also expedient to make the foyers smaller and to propose in the front of the auditorium.

After construction is started in the early spring, it will probably require about eighteen months for the completion of all of the work. This should give ample time for the students to begin their school work in the new school, with the beginning of the fall term in September 1954.

Catholic Bible Week Honors 500th Anniv. Of Gutenberg Bible

According to the Rev. Brandon McGrath, O. S. B. Director, Catholic Bible Week, Diocese of Joliet, the week of Sept. 28-Oct. 5 is being observed as Catholic Bible Week in the Joliet diocese as in all the Catholic dioceses of the United States. Under the theme of "A Bible for every Catholic," the parishes will stimulate distribution of the Old and New Testaments and exhort Catholics to more frequent reading and deeper study of the bible.

The Week will commemorate the 500th anniversary of Johann Gutenberg's printing of the first book from movable type: the Catholic Bible. The Gutenberg bible, which was Saint Jerome's translation, called the Catholic Latin Vulgate edition, resulted from the desire of the printer and the church to increase bible reading by the Catholic laity.

The Week will also mark the publication of the first volume of the new translation of the Old Testament made by the Catholic Biblical association of America under the auspices of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine. This new translation of Genesis to Ruth from the original sources to modern English appeared September 30, on which day the church celebrated the Feast of Saint Jerome.

Also on Sept. 30, a three-cent stamp honoring the 500th anniversary of the first printed book was issued by the Post Office department.

There are 45 of the estimated 200 Gutenberg Bibles still extant. Thirteen of these are in the United States. The Library of Congress in Washington has the only perfect copy printed on vellum now in this country. It is valued at more than a million dollars, and is featured in a special Bible exhibit now on display in the Library.

October 6 is the last day you will be able to register so be sure you are registered in your proper precincts. If you have moved or changed your name in the past year contact your precinct captain and he will tell you where you can register these changes.

This coming November election is of importance to you and your family. It is your right and your duty to see that our vote is cast. You are the Government and if you fail to perform your duty to your country and to your fellow neighbor you will be the one who will know it.

An idle vote will not help bring peace and contentment to your family and your home. It is your vote that will keep this great country free of the devastation that has been brought down on others not as lucky as you. You can worship as you please, enjoy breathing a free air without fear of enforced labor or an iron fist being brought down upon you and your children. You can say what you think and go and come as you please.

Be sure and register so that you may vote in November for the kind of government you want to head AMERICA.

This is your country, keep it that way.

This is National Newspaper Week, and it behooves all of us to give some thought what a free press really means to our liberties. One of the essential differences between Russia and America is that there is no such thing as freedom of the press there as we enjoy.

The idea for National Newspaper Week, the central theme of which is freedom of the press, was born in 1939 at a meeting of the National Newspaper Association Managers, Inc., but Newspaper Week was first observed officially the following year.

Originally conceived as an industry-wide tribute to America's 17-1/2 daily and 9000 weekly newspapers, National Newspaper Week has been observed on a broader basis with more far-reaching impact each year. This year, trade associations, service clubs, civic groups, churches, universities and other organizations will join the newspapers in the celebration.

National Newspaper Week is a coordinated effort in answer to organized attacks aimed at tearing down the prestige of newspapers, a prestige built on a vital need of the people. The permanent slogan, "Your Newspaper Lights the Way to Freedom," graphically illustrates the path the newspapers chart in upholding and preserving the principles on which our nation was founded. The importance of well-informed citizens in these momentous times is emphasized by this year's theme—"Your Right to Know—A Constitutional Guarantee."

To remain free we must be informed. To be informed adequately we must have unshakable sources of information. Individual freedom would perish if freedom of the press would die. We Americans can no more permit self-serving interests to chisel away our precious rights bit by bit than we can afford to permit those rights to be swallowed up suddenly by a Stalin or a Peron.

And the newspapers ALONE cannot hold the line. Our journalistic freedom comes from a consent on part of the people. Therefore, however conscientious, however ingenious and inspiring they may be, the newspapers can maintain a freedom of information all of us seek only if the public bolsters its consent with its active support.

Freedom of information is being assailed throughout the world, and even in this country from time to time in circuitous ways. And so National Newspaper Week is a period belonging equally to you and your newspaper.

In Memory of Those Who Served

Memorial Stone Is Dedicated to Those Who Served Country

While the Frankfort Homecoming was in progress a marker purchased by the Bobzin-Swinford Post No. 1098, Department of Illinois, American Legion, was dedicated in front of the village hall in honor of those who had made the supreme sacrifice in World Wars I and II.

The dedication speech was made by Past Commander Donald L. Oetter. He said:

"In the name of Bobzin-Swinford Post No. 1098, Dept. of Illinois, the American Legion, Frankfort, Illinois, I dedicate this memorial. I dedicate it to the memory of those who fell in the service of our country. I dedicate it in the name of those who offered their lives that Justice, Freedom and Democracy might survive to be the victorious ideals of the peoples of the world. The lives of those who have made the supreme sacrifice are glorious before us; their deeds are an inspiration. As they served America in time of war, yielding their last full measure of devotion, may we serve America in time of peace. 'I dedicate this monument to them, and with it I dedicate this Post to the faithful service of our country and to preservation of the memory of those who died that Liberty might live.'"

Following the dedication ceremonies a benediction was given by Reverend Munson, father of Legionnaire David Munson. At the conclusion of the prayer the Championship Joliet Township High School band under the direction of band director, Bruce Housenicht, played the Star Spangled Banner and the color guard and honor squad of the Bobzin-Swinford Post stood at attention.

The following members of the Post were in charge of buying this memorial stone to replace the Honor Roll that was erected by the Victory club back in the beginning years of World War II.

Immediate Past Post Commander Marwin Weitendorf was chairman, and Immediate Past Post Adjutant Kenneth L. Oetter, Past Commanders Clark G. Bennett, Donald L. Oetter and Ralph Neiland and Present Post Commander Donald Carroll and Legionnaire Melvin Eisenbrand were members of the Committee.

The boys who formed the Victory club in the early years of World War 2 are now grown up, and the club was dissolved some years ago. However, there was a small balance left in the treasury, which was applied towards the purchase of this marker.

He will show how to interest children in nature lore.

The Rock Island railroad will celebrate its 100th anniversary October 10, marking 100 years of progress from 1852 to 1952.

Thursday, October 9, there will be a special celebration in Joliet in observance of this century of railroading. To add realism to the occasion, the Rock Island will run an old-time passenger train, drawn by an old-fashioned diamond-stack locomotive that helped conquer the great West, timed to arrive in Joliet for their program at 11:00 a.m. The centennial train will make the run from Chicago to Joliet, and will carry one of the first Rock Island railroad diners the Orient, which operated between Chicago and Council Bluffs, Iowa, through Morris, about 1878.

The Rock Island was the first western railroad to place diners on its passenger trains. When the road first commenced dining car service, meals were 75 cents each, with half rates for children and the menu often included wild game, such as duck, venison and quail. The first diners were known as Palace diners, and they were elegant to the last word, with fancy table trimmings gleaming under the gaslights.

Mokena, Tinley Park and New Lenox have grown up around the Rock Island, and the history of these villages is inseparably entwined with that of the Route of the Rockets. Within the past few years fine new modern stations have replaced the old ones at Tinley Park and Mokena. Every day hundreds of commuters to Chicago board the fine, modern streamlined suburban trains in service between these points and LaSalle street station.

The initial run to Joliet was made by the Rocket, an old woodburner with two big wheels on each side, one hundred years ago October 10. In those early days friendly tribes of Indians were around in the area.

In 1852 the Rock Island was built through Frankfort Township. The first freight shipped over the road was assigned to a horse-drawn wagon. Francis, and consisted of a couple of carloads of lumber. There were no stations, and when the railroad men asked where they should put it off they were "old anywhere in the township. They said they could leave it one place as well as another, and put it off near the present village of Mokena.

A few residents of the villages that have been built up along the rails of the Chicago Rock Island and Pacific Railway, as it was known in the early days, will recall the old diamond-stack locomotives, two-wheelers which came along with a deep-throated "poom-poom-poom," dragging either a string of freight cars or passenger cars that were stove-heated. These old diamond-stacks were replaced with better locomotives from decade to decade as railroading improved, and have finally culminated in fast diesel engines which have practically replaced all the steam locomotives on this division, with the exception of the freight.

High Lights From Senator Dirksen's Cook County Speech

In last week's issue we published parts of some of the speeches made by visiting notables at a luncheon held at the Edgewater Beach recently, which was sponsored by the Cook County Rural Republican Organization. However, we did not have room to publish the keynote speech of the program, which was made by Senator Dirksen. Some of the things Senator Dirksen said are published below.

Senator Dirksen brought into sharp focus the situation that confronts these United States of America today. He pointed out that 266 electoral votes are needed to elect a president. Of these, Illinois has 27, one for each senator and congressman. If the Republicans of Illinois fail to carry that electoral vote by just one vote all 27 votes are lost to the Democrats. We must get all 27. Illinois is a key state, he said, and impressed upon his audience the seriousness of this electoral vote. Today, he said, we have fear of our government instead of respect for it. When he traveled through Egypt some time ago he viewed the remains of 20 countries that have fallen into dreamless dust. "Why did they fall?" he asked. On his return to America he looked up the history of all these countries, and while at this task could not help wondering if in long years to come someone might not be looking up the history of our country because we, too, had fallen into dreamless dust.

One of the pointed questions Senator Dirksen asked, and for which there was no answer, was, "Why are warm bodies rolling down the hills of Korea today?"

The senator regarded Mr. Truman's speech in Wisconsin as being a very pretty speech for a President of the United States. He pointed out that it is 165 years since our Constitution was completed. The Constitution was a guarantee of freedom for the people of this nation—not for the whole world—and the last clause of this immortal document is one of the best of all. This was inserted to secure the blessings of liberty for ourselves and our posterity. The children who have just started school this year, said the Senator, will be our posterity. At the time of the signing of the Constitution, he pointed out, one Eleanor Powell said to Benjamin Franklin as they were coming out of Independence Hall, "What have we got? Franklin answered, 'A Republic—if we can keep it'." Eleanor Powell, if she were still alive, could very well say to us today, "What have we got?" It is a challenge that challenges everything in our soul this challenge to keep the Republic that we still have and are on the verge of losing.

The Senator spoke of the wonderful progress we have made in the past 165 years. We have conquered disease, space and darkness, simply because we were a free country. And today we are defending this country—against what? What manner of bungling put us in this terrible position?

Senator Dirksen said that Mr. Truman in a speech had said, "My people are honorable and my house is clean," when at the very moment he was uttering these words a grand jury in St. Louis and another one in Boston was indicting traitors to our government. Deceit such as the Democrats have been dishing out is part of the moral issue. They have had two world wars and are presently engaged in another disastrous war. Our country cannot live on deceit, and Adlai Stevenson cannot meet the moral issue.

In the last five years, said Senator Dirksen, Canada has reduced taxes four times while we have raised taxes in America. He said we are living in a fake prosperity. In 1950 the CIO reported two million people unemployed and one million people partly employed. Then Mr. Truman's Korean war came along, and in this kind of prosperity you cannot separate jobs from war. And so, he continued, everybody is fearful and talking fear. It is time the Democrats should give way and let someone else try to make the peace someone who knows how.

It is our job, of course, to save the Republic. How? We will all have to work to save the Republic. That is the long and short of it. There is no other way out.

Senator Dirksen concluded his remarkable address with a quotation from Nehemiah: "So built we the wall, for the people had a mind to work". And they got the wall built around the city because they worked. He drew a parallel between the people of that far day and the people of today who will not work, preferring to fall back on old age pensions, unemployment compensation, etc., and said this is the wrong road to travel if we are to save the Republic.

Recent Changes Made in Disease Control

The Illinois Department of Public Health has recently revised the regulations for control of communicable diseases. The regulations went into effect August 1, 1952.

The new communicable disease rules are different from the old regulations in two major respects: Placarding of homes and control of contacts of communicable disease patients.

Placarding consists of posting a warning notice upon the door entrance to living quarters of persons isolated because of communicable disease. The object of such placarding is primarily to keep unauthorized persons from entering the premises during the period of communicability of the isolated patient. Such placarding may protect the patient against additional infection by visitors. However, placarding does not aid significantly the efforts of a health department to control the acute communicable diseases ordinarily spread directly from person to person. Placarding has definite disadvantages: It is difficult to enforce; it hinders reporting of disease; it is a costly procedure in terms of time and transportation. Because placarding was felt to be of questionable value, it has been discontinued except for four diseases: diphtheria, psittacosis, smallpox, and cholera.

The second major change in communicable disease regulations deals with "control of contacts". A "contact" is any person known to have been in association with an infected person and, therefore, presumed to have been exposed to infection. In other words, a contact would be any person who has been in close association with the patient during the onset of or during the course of his illness. In most cases of communicable diseases, other members of the family are considered contacts. The new regulations have lifted restrictions on "contacts" for measles, meningitis and scarlet fever and other streptococcal infection.

While several placarding and contact restrictions have been changed, the individual's responsibility for the control of communicable diseases remains the same. Parents must continue to remain alert to the physical condition of their children. Certainly, no child should be sent to school while showing any symptoms of communicable disease, such as headache, fever, rash, chills, upset stomach, sore throat and watery eyes. The symptoms of the "so called common cold" are the same in many instances as the early symptoms of such diseases as scarlet fever, measles, mumps, chickenpox and whooping cough. When a child is sent to school with these symptoms his health suffers and many other children may be infected with a communicable disease. It is therefore much wiser for a child to miss one or two days of school because of suspicious symptoms than to have many children miss many days of school as the result of one family's carelessness.

For additional information regarding communicable diseases control, call or write the Will County Health Department, 21 East Van Buren street, Joliet.

Install Escalators At LaSalle Station

Twin escalators are being installed in the LaSalle Street Station in Chicago. The installation is expected to be completed by the next Christmas holiday season.

Designed to operate in the same directions during morning and evening rush periods, the escalators will run in opposite directions during normal periods of traffic. Extra-wide stairways will enable passengers to transport luggage with ease.

The escalators will extend from the ground level of the station 25 feet to the train floor level. They are being built along either side of the existing stairway, which will remain.

Here's the only corn picker that's completely successful in contoured corn and it's just as good on the straightaway—the John Deere No. 200 Two-Row, Pull-Type Corn Picker. The close-coupled hitch of the No. 200 permits the wagon to hug the picker on turns, with the wagon elevator staying over the wagon at all times. Famous John Deere construction of long, gently-sloping gatherers, low-down gatherer chains, ground-hugging snapping rolls, and big-capacity husking rolls assures more corn saved and better husking.

The lightweight No. 200 weighs 700 to 1,000 pounds lighter than other two-row, pull-type pickers, yet it has plenty of strength in its rugged construction. See us for complete details. Come in soon.

Bert H. Fulton School News

Grade 1. Miss Kelly—we are getting acquainted with our teacher and other boys and girls. The boys and girls are telling about their experiences. We are also learning to hang up our wraps. It is fun to learn about numbers and counting.

Reading is the most fun of all we read stories about animals and plants.

Grade 1. Mrs. Hall—Linda Lauke fell from the Park teeter totter and suffered a broken arm. She will soon be able to return to school. Hurry and get well, Linda—we miss you! We had a difficult time understanding what a half day of school meant, our teacher explained it to us. All of us in room 103 were not very happy last Friday morning when we came into our room, one of our pet gold fish had died. Everyone is so anxious to begin "real reading". We will begin our first little book soon.

Grade 2. Mrs. Borge—Terry Mager and Tommy Larson have been at home sick this past week. Jerry Redman brought us a nice big frog. Thursday. He took it home after school so he could let it go back to its pond. Janet Birmingham and John Frierberger have brought us pictures, they drew at home. We are reading about Rusty and how he found a dog he wanted to keep. It is a nice story and we enjoy it.

Grade 2. Mrs. Hillenbrand—We are having lots of fun in second grade learning to add. We use toy farm animals while we are learning. We put so many in the farm yard and then add so many more to these. In this way we have fun while we learn. Each week we make pretty folders to hold all our work papers for the week. We call these folders, "My Work Book." On Friday we take our folders home. It is fun to show our good papers, with stars on them, to our family. We are reading in our Second Grade readers now, we read how children on Pleasant street work and play together.

Grade 3. Mrs. Rauhoff—We have been busy assembling a mural depicting a summer vacation spent at the beach. George Keuch's life guard is quite handsome, perched on his high lookout. We suddenly discovered we had made too many boats. But White Borge solved this problem by building a long dock and anchoring our extra boat to it. Our many thanks to Ralph Heckler in accepting the flag for our room. It was given to us by the American Legion.

Grade 3. Mrs. Kluge. We are indeed happy to be one of the group in the new school. We have some fish, a turtle and many plants in our room. Michael Crapser was chosen to represent our room in accepting the flag.—Mrs. M. Hillenbrand, grade 2, reporter.

Soil Care Essential to Maintain High U. S. Food Output

THE need for using fertilizer on most soils to insure a sustained supply of high nutritive food crops, was stressed by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee, in a statement citing a recent report by a U. S. House of Representatives committee investigating the use of chemicals in foods and cosmetics.

The Congressional committee's report released in Washington by Rep. James J. Delaney of New York, chairman, states that "the use of fertilizer is essential to a stable agricultural economy."

The committee's report estimates that approximately 10,600,000 tons of nitrogen, phosphate and potash—the three major plant food elements—are removed from the soil annually in harvesting high quality food products. About 3 million tons are returned in the form of manures, crop residues and legumes. Thus the net yearly loss of these nutrients is about 7,600,000 tons.

"If our soils are to continue producing the necessary high quality food crops which our country requires," says the report, "these and other plant nutrients must be returned to the soil in some manner."

Refuting claims by organic gardeners that fertilizers are harmful to soils and crops, the report says there was no substantial evidence before the committee "that the use of chemical fertilizers in accordance with good cultural practices injures the soil, or has a harmful or deleterious effect on the health of man or animal."

"As a matter of fact," the report continues, "there is evidence that judicious supplementation with chemical fertilizers, may result in crops whose yield and nutritional quality are equal to, or better than, crops grown in any other manner."

High Wheat Yields, Thick Legume Stands Come From Fall Fertilization, Spring Top Dressing

GETTING high wheat yields per acre involves giving the crop a full feed of plant nutrients, points out the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee. This means adding fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphate and potash as needed at seeding time this fall and then top-dressing next spring.

Then the wheat will have all the nutrients it needs and there will be plenty of plant food for the legume-grass crop seeded in the wheat.

The available phosphate and potash will build strong root systems and help the wheat plants harden off in the fall to resist damage from severe winter weather.

The extra nitrogen in the spring will enable your fields to support more stems for every kernel of wheat planted. You will get more heads per plant and per acre. You will get bigger and longer heads, too, for there will be enough plant food to fill out the kernels. That means more bushels per acre and better quality wheat.

Including phosphate and potash with the nitrogen in the spring top-dressing, says the committee, is especially helpful in wheat seeded to legume-grass mixtures. The nutrients will give the legumes a good start in the spring and offset some of the competition from the wheat.

Fertilizing wheat with the plant food it needs is profitable not only had died. Everyone is so anxious to begin "real reading". We will begin our first little book soon.

Grade 2. Mrs. Borge—Terry Mager and Tommy Larson have been at home sick this past week. Jerry Redman brought us a nice big frog. Thursday. He took it home after school so he could let it go back to its pond. Janet Birmingham and John Frierberger have brought us pictures, they drew at home. We are reading about Rusty and how he found a dog he wanted to keep. It is a nice story and we enjoy it.

Grade 2. Mrs. Hillenbrand—We are having lots of fun in second grade learning to add. We use toy farm animals while we are learning. We put so many in the farm yard and then add so many more to these. In this way we have fun while we learn. Each week we make pretty folders to hold all our work papers for the week. We call these folders, "My Work Book." On Friday we take our folders home. It is fun to show our good papers, with stars on them, to our family. We are reading in our Second Grade readers now, we read how children on Pleasant street work and play together.

Grade 3. Mrs. Rauhoff—We have been busy assembling a mural depicting a summer vacation spent at the beach. George Keuch's life guard is quite handsome, perched on his high lookout. We suddenly discovered we had made too many boats. But White Borge solved this problem by building a long dock and anchoring our extra boat to it. Our many thanks to Ralph Heckler in accepting the flag for our room. It was given to us by the American Legion.

Grade 3. Mrs. Kluge. We are indeed happy to be one of the group in the new school. We have some fish, a turtle and many plants in our room. Michael Crapser was chosen to represent our room in accepting the flag.—Mrs. M. Hillenbrand, grade 2, reporter.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Union Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Matthew 3-4
DEVOTIONAL READING: Joshua 24: 14-21.

Dedicating Life

Lesson for October 5, 1952

THERE ARE two classes of persons in this world: the drifters and the dedicated. Drifters become driftwood, cumbering a barren shore, or they float, waterlogged and helpless, a menace to more important traffic. The dedicated, on the other hand, have purpose in their minds, they have a course and a compass. They have somewhere to go, some reason for going there. But not all the dedicated are alike. The vital question is: To what is a man dedicated?

Stalin is a dedicated man; so are Christian missionaries; so are politicians good and bad. The big question remains: Dedicated to what? To whom?

Dedicated to God

HIGHEST object of all dedication is God; this always includes devotion to his cause. To be dedicated to God means to be devoted, in purpose and in action, in every way that is possible, to making this world—beginning with one's own self—come into line with the prayer, "Thy will be done."

The young man Jesus, whose story the Sunday school lessons will be following through the Gospel by Matthew for the next six months, was of all persons the topmost example of a life dedicated to God. Jesus did not drift into this. Dedication was not automatic, inevitable.

Jesus, not less than those he calls his brothers and sisters, had to make up his mind to the ancient demand: Choose this day whom you will serve.

Install Automatic Press to Speed Up Printing Service

To meet the ever increasing demand for job printing which with three newspapers to get out each week, has at times crowded us, several weeks ago The Semmler Newspapers contracted for a Little Giant automatic press from the American Type Founders, of Chicago. The press, which has a net weight of 2120 pounds, was installed Monday and is now in operation.

The Little Giant is a high-speed automatic press with a speed range of 2,500 to 4,000 impressions per hour, which, in conjunction with our present equipment, will enable us to turn out more printing jobs than ever before. The new press will handle any stock from post card size to a sheet 12x18 inches, and any stock from onionskin to a 4-ply card.

With this new high speed press in operation we are equipped to give excellent service on printing circulars, dodgers, posters, tickets, bank forms. We are now especially well equipped to take care of color jobs, from one to four colors. The value of color as a sales force is, of course well known.

The Little Giant replaces none of our former equipment, but is additional, meaning that we are now much better equipped to take care of your printing requirements, in less time.

Says Water Meters Cannot Cheat You

Walter H. Pfaff, village clerk at Frankfort, has received the following letter from Dan R. Gannon, Supervisor of Liquid Meter Sales of the Rockwell Mfg. Co., Chicago, in answer to Mr. Pfaff's inquiry:

"Answering your letter of September 17, in which you ask can a water meter register more gallons than are used by a property owner."

"The broad answer to this question is no. A water meter is activated by the flow or movement of the water through it. A meter is an instrument with definite limitations of capacity. These capacities to measure extremely small streams, such as leaks, dripping faucets etc., are in relation to the age of a meter. The older and more worn the meter, the less accurate they become. As a machine or instrument, wear begins at installation and continues until failure. Likewise, as wear occurs, more and more water passes through the meter unregistered."

"It is recommended that the property owners conduct an extensive check for leaks on the premises. If meters are set at curb lines it is not uncommon for leaks to occur between the meter and the house."
